

Biography

Dr Anna Jöborn is the CEO at the Swedish Foundation for Strategic Environmental Research (www.mistra.org). Prior to this position she was Director for the Science affairs department at the Swedish Agency for Marine and Water Management for almost ten years. During this period, she was part of the management team that established this new national public authority. Her career path has also involved a position as Director for the Department for Natural Resource Management and Environmental Effects at the Swedish Environmental Research Institute (IVL). She has coordinated a number of national- and international transdisciplinary research programs over the years. She holds a PhD in aquatic microbiology.